

Museum News: My Adventures at the North Hertfordshire Museum

By Jack Hubbard (guest author)

When I first took the opportunity to have my work experience I didn't really know what to expect from it apart from that I was going to be doing stuff to do with history which is something I am passionate about. But on day one I realised that the week was going to be better than I imagined. I really enjoyed seeing some very interesting things like the Louis Wain paintings which I got to spend most of my experience being with. The work environment is calming, and everyone works well together which I found pleasant to be part of for the week. I really learnt a lot about something I am interested in and I hope to come back as a volunteer sometime in the close future. I would recommend anyone with interests to do with history and other similar subjects that the North Hertfordshire Museum is the place to go for an amazing experience. Thank you for letting me do my experience here.

Jack Hubbard.

Year 10.

John Henry Newman School.

Share this:

Email

Print

Facebook

Twitter

Pocket

WhatsApp

Pinterest

Reddit

Jack with a sherd of Roman pottery found during a site visit